

Ulya Khan is a healthcare & information services executive with significant experience in building and scaling businesses. She is an Operating Partner at Virgo Investment Group, a PE firm with $1.8B under management. Ulya is also a founding member of the Phoenix chapter of Golden Seeds, one of the nation's most active early-stage investment firms focused on the vibrant opportunities of women-led businesses.

Ulya has over 25 years experience in major corporations developing profitable new product and business lines, executing merger integrations with minimum collateral damage and transforming an organization's culture and behavioral mindset. Ms Khan has held many senior leadership roles, including Chief Operating & Product Officer at Tivity Health and Chief Operating Officer at Aptus Health where she was responsible for executing on an aggressive growth strategy, scaling the business including driving 50% year on year revenue growth through M&A integration and integrating 5 acquisitions over three years. Additional roles she has held include various leadership positions at Thomson Reuters, helping to drive $750 million in revenues, and as a leader of a boutique management consulting firm where she worked with start-ups as well as large corporations including Dow Jones and American Express.

Ulya serves on a number of boards, including Element3Health, PeerFit, AkosMD and HealtheVillages. She has a Bachelors Degree in Computer Sciences and a Masters Degree in Management Sciences from Imperial College, London. Ulya has also completed various Executive Programs from Harvard Business School, including Business Strategy and Managing Health Care Delivery. She is also a Fellow of the Nashville Healthcare Council Fellow Program (2017).