COVID Safety Plan

To ensure our event attendees health and security, as well as the safety of our speakers and staff, Politico has implemented the following safety plan, effective January 15, 2022:
Proof of full vaccination against COVID-19 is required to attend all indoor programs and events. Event attendees may display proof of vaccine on a smartphone or by showing a physical copy of the vaccination card or official vaccination record, along with a photo ID, such as a driver's license or passport.

"Full vaccination" means that either 14 days have passed since receiving the second dose of FDA or WHO authorized double-dose vaccines or that 14 days have passed since receiving the sole dose of FDA or WHO authorized single-dose vaccines.

Those attendees entitled to a medical or religious exemption will be required to present a negative test within 48 hours of the event.

COVID FAQ

What proof of full vaccination will you accept?
We will accept your physical vaccination card, a photo of your vaccination card. The name on your vaccination record must match the name on your photo ID. Full vaccination means that it's been at least 14 days since your last shot.

What type of test result will you accept for those who can't get vaccinated?
For those who have a medical condition preventing them from being vaccinated, we will accept documented (either printed or digital) medically-administered laboratory-based negative test results from an antigen or PCR test taken within 48 hours before the event. The documentation must include the type of test, the healthcare entity that issued the test, the test date, and the name of the person being tested. At-home self-tests will not be accepted.

Do I have to wear a mask?
Politico complies with federal, state and local requirements with respect to masking and will adhere to the applicable requirements for each jurisdiction in which we host an event. Currently, the District of Columbia Mayor's December 22, 2021 Order, requires all attendees to wear masks at indoor establishments in the District until March 1, 2022. Politico will continue to monitor federal, state and local requirements to ensure the health and safety of our attendees, speakers and staff. Politico reserves the right to require masks after March 1, 2022 at its discretion.
